Fast Facts about the Academic Success Center

To assist you with getting students to resources and services as efficiently as possible, here are some quick tips and suggested links/resources:

- The Academic Success Center (ASC) website has a Faculty Resource page. Bookmark this site to visit often.
- Send students to the ASC website to peruse resources and learn more about our services.
- Academic coaching is focused on written communication and quantitative reasoning and is skill-based not deliverable-based. Students can register for coaching here and here is a FAQ to assist them.
  - Tutoring would focus on an assignment (deliverable). We do not tutor. Rather, a writing coach would assist your student in learning how to synthesize so that skill could be used across all assignments.
- Writing coaching focuses on higher order skills such as paraphrasing, idea alignment, and synthesis/analysis. Suggest Grammarly to students for grammar and Academic Writer for students for APA Style.
- Send a student to the Ask a Coach page if they have questions about how to register for services. We have steps with pictures and videos to assist them as well as live chat if they need to speak with a coach.
- Students can self-schedule recorded and group sessions. Individual Sessions need to be scheduled via ASC Chat. See our Appointment Types FAQ and recommend to students for more information.
- Students in any "CMP" designated course (portfolio, prospectus, or exam) can utilize all of our self-directed resources and Ask a Coach plus group sessions. CMP students cannot use recorded or individual sessions until they move into their dissertation courses.
  - See our FAQ for more information and the link to the policy
  - We have group sessions for most of the prospectus components. See our Group Sessions guide for more details.
- Collaboration between students, faculty, and coaches is encouraged! One way to begin that collaboration is to encourage students to self-select to send you their coaching plan. You can also ask students if you can view their session recordings.
- Faculty members are welcome to use our Ask a Coach page by searching our FAQs, submitting a question, or chatting live with an academic coach.
- Faculty members are welcome to attend group or individual sessions with a student. Have the student schedule the session and forward you the Zoom meeting link.

The shared goal is to get students the assistance they need to be successful. If you have a student who would benefit from assistance with writing or statistics, direct them to the ASC or fill out a collaboration form (available on the Faculty Resource page) so we can reach out.
